More Bomb Throwing.

Brussels, June 18.—An explosion this morning in a house on Sue Royalet turns out to have been not as serious as at first expected. The building is occupied by officers, but there was nobody in them when the explosion occurred. The bomb or infernal machine was exploded on the first floor. The police know of no cause for the outrage and have as yet made no arrests.

GOVERNMENT VS. RAILWAYS.

Attorney-General Olney Has Decided to Take Proceedings at Once.

To Recover the Amount of Bonds Which the Government Guaranteed,

Washington, D. C., June 18.—The attorney-general has definitely determined to enter suit against the Union Pacific railway and Kansas Pacific railway jointly and the Central Pacific railway, to recover the amount of bonds which are guaranteed by the government, together with accrued interest at 6 per cent. for thirty years. The total amount for the three roads, including interest, is $171,000,537.60. Attorney-General Olney transmitted on Saturday to Assistant-Attorney Russell, until recent connected with the French spoliation claims, several documents connected with the railroad cases, with the statement that they were to be filed with the suits. The Union and Kansas Pacific suit will be filed in Washington and the other in San Francisco. All that remains now is to discover available avenues for testimony to prove the government's points. Attorney Russell is engaged day and night on the cases. The method of procedure of the government will be to endeavor to prove that he original stockholders of the road have been guilty of a breach of trust. The contracts with the government required that a certain percentage of the earnings of the roads should be set aside for a sinking fund to be applied to the payment of debts to the government, which has not been done. If the courts sustain the position taken by the government attorney the misplaced funds will be recovered wherever they may be found. This will make the ramifications of the cases more intricate than in any cases of a like nature in the history of the country.

The Megantic Outlaw Released from the Penitentiary.

Ottawa, June 18.—Lord Aberdeen has approved of the recommendation of the minister of justice releasing Donald Morrison, and word was sent to the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary by the state department at two o'clock to-day. The Megantic outlaw is therefore a free man.

Wm. Smith, deputy minister of marine and fisheries, has gone to England as Canadian representative on the committee appointed to consider the manning of merchant ships.

A. H. Fraser, of Toronto, has been instructed by the government to examine the Athabasca petroleum deposits.

AMERICAN NEWS NOTES.

Daily Chronicle of the Events of the Great Republic.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 18.—John Glennon, of Geneva, N. Y., was until a few days ago a laborer with a big family on his hands. Now he is about to come into possession of $25,000. Some months ago his bachelor brother at Lawrence, Pa., died suddenly in this city, leaving an estate valued at that sum.

Toledo, O., June 18.—Some mysterious agency is causing the death of fish in many of the rivers of northwestern Ohio. Complaints come from villages and towns on the Sandusky that the banks of the stream are lined with dead fish, from minnows to pike and pickerel a foot long. There was a plague of dead fish in the Sandusky last year, but not so serious as now.

Metuchen, N. J., June 18.—A battle in the air was fought yesterday between this state and Perth Amboy by 17-year-old locusts and dragon flies. The battle lasted for half an hour and was watched by many. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the road was thronged with carriages filled with people on their way to Boynton beach. They were startled by a large swarm of locusts, which settled on trees, fences and along the roadside. Following the locusts was a swarm of dragon flies. They attacked the locusts, which rose in the air, pursued by the flies. The dragons seemed to have the best of the battle from start to finish, and many dead locusts fell. The dragons, quicker of wing than the locusts, singled out their victims and darted at them like flashes of lightning. One blow was sufficient to send a locust to earth. The swarm of locusts was much reduced, and the survivors started southwards, pursued by the bloodthirsty dragon flies.

LAW INTELLIGENCE

Appeals Considered by the Divisional Court This Morning.

The divisional court sat this morning. There were present on the bench Justices Crease, Walkem and Drake. Justice McCreight of New Westminster had been sent for, but on account of press of work on the Mainland it was impossible for him to come.

Burns vs. Trapp—This is an appeal in which the jurisdiction of county court judges to try supreme court cases will have to be decided and as it is an important question the appeal stands over until after the elections as the attorney-general holds a brief.

McColl vs. Leamy et al.—Appeal by the defendants from an order of Mr. Justice McCreight made on a summons to fix security to be given by defendants on appeal. The order placed the security at $500 to meet the cost that may be occasioned by appeal and directed that costs of suit be paid according to decree on the solicitor undertaking to repay if the court should so direct, and also that bond be given for the amount of the judgment to the satisfaction of the registrar. The ground of appeal was that no stay of execution or proceedings was asked for on the summons. Appeal dismissed. Eckstein for the appellant, J. W. McColl for respondent.

Gordon vs. Cotton—Before Justices Crease and Drake. Campbell, for the defendant, appealed from an order dated 31 May, refusing an application by the defendant to amend Mr. Justice Drake's order of May 20. The order on its face does not show that it is a court order, and the defendant now seeks to have placed on the order under the judge's name, the words "Sitting in Court." E. P. Davis appeared for the plaintiff. The court dismissed the appeal, holding that the material was insufficient and also that the defendant being in contempt, could not appeal.

There was another appeal in Gordon vs. Cotton. It was from the order of Mr. Justice Drake committing the defendant. Mr. Justice Walkem sat for Mr. Justice Drake for the purpose of amending a clerical error in the latter's order, and so neither of them could sit on the appeal. It will be heard here on the 28th instant when Justice McCreight will be here.

Larson & Co. vs. Nelson & Fort Sheppard Railway Company and others—Appeal by the plaintiffs in a mechanics' lien action from the judgment of Judge Spinks. The action was tried at Nelson and decided on a preliminary objection to the affidavit which said the work was finished "on or about" and which the learned judge held was insufficient. The case was not argued, but will come up on July 12th. E. V. Bodwell and A. E. McPhillips for plaintiffs and Gordon Hunter for defendants.

EQUITABLE REGULATIONS.

For Sealing Vessels Traversing Prohibited Waters in the Close Season.

Collector Milne to-day received a letter from the minister of marine and fisheries confirming the telegram of two weeks ago and giving fuller particulars as to the exchange of notes between Gresham and Pauncefote on the regulations respecting sealing vessels lawfully navigating the maritime area under the award during the close season. Following are the regulations, which are as equitable and reasonable as possible:

1. No sealing vessel shall be seized or detained by the reason of the absence of a license or of a distinctive flag, or merely on account of seals, sealskins or fishery implements being found on board, but unless there be evidence of unlawful sealing, the commander of the cruiser visiting such sealing vessel shall deliver to the master a certificate of the number of seals and sealskins found on board on that date (keeping a copy of such certificate), and allow the vessel to proceed on her way.

2. Any sealing vessel lawfully traversing or intending to traverse the said waters during the close season for the purpose of returning to her home port, or of proceeding to any other port, or to or from the sealing grounds, or for any other legitimate purpose, may on the application of the master have her fishery implements sealed up and an entry thereof made on her clearance or log book, and such sealing up and entry shall be a protection to the vessel against interference by any cruiser in the said waters during the close season so long as the seals so affixed shall remain unbroken, unless there shall be evidence of seal hunting notwithstanding.

3. The sealing up of fishery implements and entry thereof may be effected by any naval officer or customs officer, or (in Japan) by any consul of the nation to which the vessel belongs. It may also be effected at sea as regards U. S. vessels by the commander of a British cruiser, and as regards British vessels by the commander of a United States cruiser.

The Wrong Man Hung.

Springfield, Mass., June 18.—Dr. Mary Walker last night applied to Matron Mallory for protection. She stated she was on her way to LeBanon, N. H., to see about the final adjustment of the $2500 reward for the capture of Frank H. Almy, the murderer of Christie Warren, and that emissaries of the Warden family were following her with evil intent. She claims that Almy is still alive and that it was Frank Abbott that was hung in his stead.

With Imposing Ceremonies.

Berlin, June 18.—The foundation stone of the new Protestant cathedral, which is to replace the old Dom church, was laid yesterday. There were imposing ceremonies. Emperor William, the empress and imperial children, with a number of royal personages, the German and Prussian ministers, a number of generals, and civil officials, attended the ceremony.

A Proposed Attack.

St. John's, Nfld., June 18.—The steamer Sylvia, from New York, which is expected to-day, may be the object of an attack on the part of the Whitewaviles. According to the plans which have already been formulated, they propose to get hold of the cargo if possible. A man-of-war now lying in the harbor will also land men at the slightest sign of trouble.

Rosebery Condemned.

London, June 18.—Dr. Percival, master of Rugby, preached in Westminster Abbey last night, taking as his text, "Am I my brother's keeper?" In the course of his sermon he referred to Lord Rosebery and horse racing, and said the world appeared to have taken Cain's word as a motto. When an English nobleman patronized the turf with its weedy growth of dishonesty and degradation, simply to gratify a feeling for excitement, and did not use an effort nor a finger to reform it, he came under the same condemnation.

No Cholera in Hamburg.

Hamburg, June 18.—Nothing is known here of the reported reappearance of cholera in the city.

Washington Floods.

Tacoma, Wn., June 18.—A correspondent at the Dalles wires that in that vicinity the loss by floods is about $600,000. The town was not damaged seriously, and the losses have fallen upon those best able to stand them, the government and the Union Pacific railway. Uncompleted locks on which the United States government has expended over $2,000,000 narrowly escaped total destruction and its works have been damaged to the extent of $200,000. The water is yet so high that it is impossible to tell exactly to what extent the land has suffered. The damage to mineries and canneries, including the loss of time, will amount to at least $100,000. Work on the Cascade locks was commenced eighteen years ago, and Day & Day are under contract to complete the work by March, 1895.

Hooper Sentenced.

Montreal, June 18.—Hooper has been sentenced to twenty-five years in the penitentiary.

TROUBLE IN NICARAGUA.

Law is Set at Defiance, and Indians and Negroes Are Against Whites.

Pearl City Streets Filled With Howling Mobs—Policemen Beaten.

New Orleans, June 18.—A special from Bluefields says: The Mosquito question does not seem to be quieting. Outbreaks are numerous. In Bluefields courts are set at defiance, while at Pearl City, which is the second town of importance and also on the reservation, things are even worse. In Pearl City on the evening of the fourth when the police attempted to arrest a disorderly negro, an American named Joe Lahn called upon a crowd of negroes and Indians to resist. The crowd fell upon the police with great fury. Two policemen were beaten nearly to death. The newly appointed Nicaraguan governor came out to quell the riot, but was compelled to flee to the government building for his life. The streets are now filled by a howling mob of half-drunken natives, men and women. The women and girls did their full share of drinking and fighting. After the riot they had a "May Pole" dance in front of the government buildings, which lasted till midnight. In the morning the governor sent a message to Bluefields asking for troops. He sent another to the British cruiser Magicienne asking for marines to protect his life. The riot was the outcome of the long pentup hatred in Nicaragua. There is said to be a prefect understanding between the negroes and the Indian tribes. The consuls have received official notice that the ministers have agreed upon a plan of settlement, and while the terms are not made public, it is generally understood to be favorable to Nicaragua. She is to retain sovereign rights, and will fortify the frontier, collect revenues and hold public lands. On the other hand the grief will be restored with municipal rights only.

A VICTIM TO SCIENCE.

A Man Consents to Have a Hole Bored into His Stomach.

New York, June 18.—The man who for the consideration of $5000 consented to have a hole bored through his stomach in the interests of science, has paid for his fortune with his life. It all came through an advertisement last August, printed by one Osbaldeston, who conducts a massage establishment in West 46th street. It called for a man who would consent to go down to Guayaquil, Ecuador, and there submit to an experimental operation by two South American doctors. Osbaldeston acted as agent for those physicians. It was illustrative of hard times that more than 120 answers were received. The operation in question was simply an incision in the stomach through which the action of the gastric juices might be observed. The cavity thus made was about the size of a hazel nut. Tubes of gold and silver were inserted and through these the nourishment taken by the patient was forced, the digestive process being marked by the aid of electric light. Incidental to the operation, certain chemical substances were administered to the patient through the tubes to ascertain positively the action of drugs in combination with each other. It does not appear that any specific object was to be achieved by these investigations, or that so far medical science has been served in the slightest degree.

Twice before had Osbaldeston obtained subjects for these medical men. The first patient was J. Burton. He recovered after nearly a year of suffering and is now a farmer in Queensland. The second subject was inoculated with several frightful diseases and died a horrible death. Among 120 persons who answered Osbaldeston was one powerful fellow. He was five feet in height and weighed 180 pounds, looked hard and wiry and was as active as a cat. Osbaldeston decided that he would do. His name was Ferdinand Pietrich. The first week in September Pietrich sailed for Guayaquil. There for four or five weeks he remained under medical care in preparation for the ordeal and it was the second or third week in October before the chief surgeon, Dr. Adele Ajaico ventured to perform the operation. Osbaldeston learned four or five months ago that the operation had been successful and that the patient was on the road to recovery, when he took to drink. Under those conditions it became necessary to stop treatment for a time and in this interval Pietrich, while sitting on the battlements of the fortress one morning was sunstruck and died within two hours. He was alone in the world and it does not appear that he ever got the money for which he had risked his life or anything beyond the travelling expenses.

CHINESE DAY.

A Lavish Display in the Procession at the Midwinter Fair.

San Francisco, June 18.—The celebration by the Chinese today was the most characteristic that has taken place at the exposition. The feature of the day was a grand procession in the afternoon, which for gorgeousness has never been excelled in the city and which presented many unique sights. Numerous floats and floral devices, banners and richly arrayed Chinese sailors, warriors armed with spears, tridents and other Mongolian weapons and gongs and great lanterns in profusion. The procession band headed the procession and a Chinese band of 25 pieces was also in line. Among the floats was a joss house, a large Chinese junk, a dragon ship and Chinese goddess seated on a dragon throne. All were lavishly adorned with silk banners bearing inscriptions in characters of gold. After the procession exercises were held in Festival Hall under Chinese auspices, speeches being made both in Chinese and English.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

Still Tinkering at the Tariff—Seventy Changes, Sixty Being Increases.

The Red Parlor Again Supreme—Curran Bridge Boodle, $200,000.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Ottawa, May 28.—The observance of the national holiday in connection with the Queen's birthday celebration closed here to-day, when the house of commons resumed its duties this afternoon. It is not known yet whether the break in the work of legislation from Wednesday evening last until to-day will have the effect of shortening or prolonging the session to any appreciable degree outside the date on which prorogation otherwise would occur. If my own experience be worth anything, a few holidays adds to the length of the session more than the days which they actually number. One day would make little difference, since members would not leave the city. But in the present case neary all the members, outside of British Columbia, have left for their homes. Even the members from the far away little province of Prince Edward Island, which stands out in the Atlantic as a sentinel guarding our much loved Dominion, have been able in the present case to pay a visit to their constituencies. As a consequence they will return to Ottawa laden with a crop of grievances which have been supplied them by their constituents, and which the latter insist ought to be redressed. The tariff changes have all been carefully watched by the electors who read the newspapers, and the opinion which has been formed on them will be conveyed to the member upon this visit to his constituency. He will have to attend to the same when he returns to Ottawa, which of course means more talk and more business for the house to attend to.

In reference to the tariff, it is still lying between heaven and earth in an unsettled state. It may be finished in a week or it may not. That entirely depends upon the willingness of the manufacturer to cease crying for more plunder. The government have already come down handsomely in obedience to the demands of the high protectionists. Out of nearly seventy changes in the tariff sixty have been increases. That is to say, seventy changes have been made to suit the manufacturers, and out of these seventy-six have added more taxation to the great masses of the people beyond what was intended by the resolutions of Mr. Foster when he delivered his budget speech, now nearly two months ago. All kinds of abuse was heaped upon the Liberals because it was said they deterred the finance minister a day longer than he intended for the delivery of his financial statement. I showed then that he was not ready to do so, because it was not really prepared. When he did come to deliver it he had not reached his private residence that evening before clerical errors were discovered. What has happened since that day has been repeatedly chronicled by the press of both sides of politics. Delegation after delegation of the privileged classes threatened the existence of the government, and the ministry had to yield to their exorbitant demands, and as a consequence item after item of the tariff was changed to meet their wishes.

The Conservative press, of course, praised the administration for the tariff as it was first given to the public. It was said to be par excellence. We were told that the tariff committee were to be congratulated for their able efforts during the nine or ten months during which they were finding out exactly what the people required and then giving it to them. It must be admitted, and indeed was admitted, that many of the changes then made were in the direction asked for not only by the great masses, but strenuously insisted on by the Liberal party. The change of many items from specific to ad valorem duties was a good thing. Conservatives and Liberals alike were agreed upon this point.

But notice what follows. One after the other of these items was restored. Ad valorem duties were not high enough to give the favored classes enough of public plunder, and so the specific duties were again imposed. By these changes the supporters of the government were put in a humiliating position. In the first place the old tariff as it stood before parliament met was held to be all right. When Mr. Foster announced his new tariff it was voted to be a perfect tariff, just what was required. In a few days the same party, which includes every member from British Columbia, will vote in response to the sound of the division bell that they were wrong in both instances and that the re-revised tariff is more than perefct. Indeed should Mr. Foster, at the beck of his masters of the Red Parlor, find out further clerical errors and announce them to the house every Tory in it will say that it was very foolish of them not to see that that would be the most perfect tariff of all. History does not show any precedent for a government making such a pitiable example of its followers as has been the case this session.

While the whole matter is to be viewed thus on the surface, it does not really show the true state of affairs. Indeed, there is some tall swearing among the better class of Conservative members of parliament, especially from Ontario. Not a few of the Ontario followers of the government have gone in for tariff reform with the honest desire to see it accomplished, and now to see that their best wishes have been thwarted, after openly having announced themselves as tariff reformers, puts them in a very false position with their constituents. But what are they going to do about it? They cannot break with the combines, for it is from these that the sinews of war come. Nor are the combinesters satisfied with the action of the government. True they are pleased at getting the ministry to return to the high protection theory, but they hold that the action of the government in first announcing their intention to give way, even in a small degree, to the tariff reform cry, drew the attention of the whole community to the iniquity of the protective system in such a way as to make its destruction only a mere question of time. They roundly abuse the government for having proposed the reductions clamored for, and then going back to the old tariff, because such a course showed plainly that reduction was desirable. What they wanted was the old tariff except one or two changes, notably a reduction in the duty on agricultural implements so as to please the Patrons of Industry. Another strong argument was used against the agricultural implement men, and that was that they were nearly all Reformers, and the few Conservatives in the business had been only small contributors to Tory election funds. The latter cry had weight, and there was therefore no difficulty in dealing with them.

The whole business has shown as clear as noonday that the protective system is a monstrous fraud on the community. The few are benefited and the many are robbed. The poor man is made poorer still and the rich man is enabled to add to his accumulated wealth. Parliament has been about two months tariff tinkering, and we are to-day in about the same place as where we began.

The first great object lessons to those who want to see this iniquity abolished was witnessed when the government had to delay calling parliament until congress had dealt with the United States tariff. Just as the difficulties of the Democrats increased there in dealing with the tariff so became louder the cries of the combinesters and their friends in parliament here for protection. Only one or two voices in the ministry were heard in favor of protection a few years ago. Three months ago their number increased. As the combinesters succeeded in the United States in mutilating the Wilson tariff bill our Canadian Tory legislators became jubilant, and to-day the members of the Canadian government are loud in their praises of protection and the Red Parlor has once more resumed the full control of the affairs of the Dominion. Such is the present state of the political machine, and such it will remain just as long as the present government rules at Ottawa.

An evidence of the extravagance of the present government and their desire to reward their political friends is observed in the increase of employes in the civil service since the Mackenzie regime. In 1878 there were some 380 permanent hands employed in the departments at Ottawa. To-day there are 856. Now anybody can see that the increase of population or work for these officials has not by any means increased to an extent which would warrant this increase in the number of servants employed or the amount of money expended.

J. P. B. Casgrain, Q. C., and Jos. R. Roy, C. E., were appointed by the Montreal Herald company some time ago to look into the Curran bridge scandal. Their report was given for the first time to the public at the meeting of the public accounts committee the other day. On being examined Mr. Casgrain said that he and Mr. Roy took the government figures. Taking the government figures for quantities of ice he made the cost $9,450. This was at 50 cents per cubic yard. That would allow a good profit for the contractor. His calculation of the quantity was 20 per cent. less than the figures of the government commissioners. As to the crib work removed, he made the quantity about 25 per cent. less, but he had not his figures with him, because he did not expect to be questioned upon them. For the purpose of the investigation he used the commissioners' plans and figures. Taking these figures and the crib work of 8529 cubic yards at $1.25 per yard would cost $10,661. The commissioners allowed $1.50, but in the opinion of Mr. Casgrain $1.25 was a good price. The masonry removed was 2127 cubic yards. He and Mr. Roy estimated that this could be done at a good profit to the contractor at $1.50 per cubic yard, or in all $3,190. The excavation of earth was 9720 cubic yards at 75 cents per cubic yard, or $7,290. The stone filling in of piers was $2 per yard, or in all $7,400. For masonry he and Mr. Roy allowed $17 per cubic yard, which he considered was a profitable price. For tubes, $16,390; temporary bridge, $2,000; other temporary works, $3,000, and contingencies, say $7,000. The $2,000 for the temporary bridge they put down the same as the commissioners had done, but witness was not aware whether a bridge was required or not. He saw no bridge. The total estimates which he and Mr. Roy had made for the substructures of the bridge at the above prices, which he considered high, was $140,000. The amount of the accounts rendered for this part of the work was $430,000. Their estimate was therefore that $290,000 had been charged in excess of the price. The commissioners' estimate was that $200,000 had been charged in excess. This one job will give an idea of how the public works of the Dominion are being carried on.

Consumption—Low Condition

Wonderful Results From Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Miss Hannah Wyatt
Toronto, Ont.

"Four years ago while in the old country (England), my daughter Hannah was sent away from the hospital, in a very low condition with consumption of the lungs and bowels, and weak action of the heart. The trip across the water to this country seemed to make her feel better for a while. Then she began to get worse, and for 14 weeks she was unable to get off the bed. She grew worse for five months and lost the use of her limbs and lower part of body, and if she sat up in bed had to be propped up with pillows. Physicians

Said She Was Past All Help

and wanted me to send her to the 'Home for Incurables.' But I said as long as I could hold my hand up she should not go. We then began to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is getting strong, walks around, is out doors every day; has no trouble with her throat and no cough, and her heart seems to be all right again. She has a first class appetite. We regard her cure as nothing short of a miracle." W. WYATT, 89 Marion Street, Parkdale, Toronto, Ontario.

Ayer's Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier. Harmless, effective, and agreeable, it has taken high rank among toilet articles. This preparation causes thin and weak hair to become abundant, strong, and healthy, and restores to gray hair its original color.

There is a new variation in the old story of the young wife who was anxious to please her husband by cleaning up his meerschaum pipe and rejuvenating his hobbies. The husband, in this instance, had an absorbing and overmastering passion for rare books. He did not care so much for the interior part of the book as he did for something a little bit aged and uncouth in the way of binding. His library was really picturesque as far as age could make it. His wife wrote to the editor of a magazine for a receipt for cleaning bookbindings. It came out in the number following her letter, and proved to be one of the most searching and complete successes ever known. Everything was all prepared, and when her husband returned from a three days' trip to Washington city he found his books shining like tin kettles, and without vestige of age or value about them. Even the gold letters had been touched up with a small camel's hair brush, dipped in gold leaf, and beside the bookcase sat a smiling and triumphant wife.—New York Sun.

JUNE ORCHARD WORK.

Washington Fruit Growers' Regular Monthly Bulletin.

S. A. Clarke, secretary of the Northwest Fruit Growers' Association, furnishes the following bulletin from that association as to important orchard work for June:

The time has fully come when the codlin moth needs attention and the fruit grower must spray his trees—apples and pears—to prevent the ravages of the apple worm, its progeny. For several years past in western Oregon and Washington the codlin moth has developed during the warm weather in May, and a month has transpired before any worms have hatched. If the season has been late the hatching has been retarded, and last year the ravages of the worm were commenced later than usual. The warm weather that could develop the moth did not occur this year until the last week in May, if former experience was any criterion. There has been opportunity for the millers to make progress, and we expect the worms to commence their work before long, therefore we should prepare for them.

To secure at the same time a speedy remedy for the fungus, or scab, that affects the apple and pear, use Bordeaux mixture and a pound of London purple to two hundred gallons of solution. Many practical fruit growers find London purple far more efficacious than Paris green. They consider it does better execution and is more easily used, as water will hold it in solution when it will not the other.

Bordeaux mixture is composed of 25 pounds sulphate of copper, or blue stone, and 20 of lime, dissolved in two hundred gallons of water. First dissolve the sulphate in twenty gallons of water, then add the lime to the same, and when well dissolved strain off into spray tank; add one pound of London purple and increase to two hundred gallons of water, and you have both a fungicide and insecticide, to protect your trees from the scab as well as the worm that eats into apple and pear.

The lime, sulphur and salt wash is too strong to be used when trees are in leaf, and should be used while trees are dormant; but the Bordeaux mixture can be used to good advantage when trees are in leaf, and has been recommended as having a tonic effect on any tree that needs invigorating. The writer used it last summer to spray Italian prunes to prevent their foliage shrivelling, as it often does, with apparently good effect.

An extensive fruit grower at San Leander, Cal., told the writer recently that for several years he has had large crops of Winter Nellis pears when the neighbors had none. He said this when we noticed how full his Winter Nellis trees were bearing, and remarked that in Oregon orchards this pear had been blighted for several years. He said he had four thousand boxes in 1893 and a full crop in 1892, and his trees were full set again. The trouble has been that the fungus blighted this pear as soon as it appeared from the bloom. This caused this fungus to be called years ago in California "the Winter Nellis blight." As Bordeaux was not a remedy—as it usually is for apples and pears—this grower had tried lime, sulphur and salt as an experiment, with perfect success. Pear growers should remember this, and so save their crops in the future.

It is now necessary to thin all fruit that is too thick on the trees. There are varieties of apples that will so overbear as to be invaluable, and the next year will not bear at all, whereas if thinned they will bear every year. Such large prunes and plums as the Bradshaw, Columbia, Silver and Hungarian need to be thinned when too full, and the chances are they will not be thinned enough.

The peach and plum borer must be carefully dug out of the roots of trees, as it works during three years, and is ruinous. After digging out carefully, wrap the body of the tree for a foot above the ground with some heavy paper and cover the lower edge of the paper with earth well hilled up, and the miller will not get at the tree.

Last year I used a strong wash—known as spray No. 3 in Oregon bulletin No. 8—made a Phoenix exterminator ready for use, with directions, and washed the main roots and base of the trunk therewith to prevent the miller laying eggs.

This Phoenix exterminator, or spray No. 3, is made of 20 pounds whale oil soap, 3 pounds sulphur, 1 pound caustic soda, 1 pound potash, boiled together to 100 gallons water. It is not easily made, and can be bought prepared for use in any quantity. It is a good wash, and can be used at any time for woolly aphis, green aphis, or any other insect pest. Must be used warm.

Bordeaux mixture, for the scab, should be used with London purple twice a month until July, and after that time London purple continued for the apple worm, on apple and pear twice a month until September.

Cultivation of orchards should be sufficient to keep the land clean and the surface loose and not so often or so late in the season as to cause the vitality of the tree to be continued unnaturally. It is reasonably claimed that over cultivation is harmful. Horticulture demands constant study of natural laws.

I receive many inquiries as to the best methods for drying fruits, and shall prepare an essay on this important subject at an early day.

GERMANY OFFENDED.

The Policy of England and Spain Does not Please That Nation.

Berlin, June 16.—The crisis in the affairs of Europe caused by the death of Sultan Muley Hassan and the strong feeling aroused in certain quarters in regard to the succession of his son, Abdul Aziz, has served to focus the feelings of antagonism towards England which has been especially noticeable and which has grown in strength ever since the announcement of the Anglo-Kongo treaty. As evidence of this feeling against England it is believed that it is the determination of the German government not to take part in any naval demonstration which the other powers may contemplate making upon the coast of Morocco. Of course should German interests be menaced by any outcome of the disputes which have arisen since the death of the Sultan, the emperor may be compelled to send a fleet to Morocco. But, according to present indications, there will be no necessity for such a step, as the German diplomats are confident that the rival interests of the western powers will insure their neutrality. In this connection the Cologne Gazette semi-officially remarks: "Although Germany does not hanker after territorial aggrandizement, she has important commercial interests and the security of numerous German subjects to defend." Then, referring to the eventuality of the transfer of Morocco to an European power, the Gazette adds significantly: "After our recent experiences with English and Spanish diplomacy in connection with the Kongo agreement and the commercial treaty, neither of the countries can expect the same friendly co-operation that confidently had been hoped for otherwise. It is time that Germany should show that she is determined not to be treated as a quantite negligeable in African questions."

As though to show that political affairs do not affect the personal relations of the two courts, Emperor William, during the week has been feting the delegation from the First Royal Dragoons, the British regiment to which Queen Victoria, during her stay at Coburg, appointed him honorary colonel. The British dragoons were treated in a most hospitable manner, and left Berlin delighted with the emperor's hospitality.

In spite of reassuring statements from Friedrichsruhe there is an uneasy feeling in regard to Prince Bismarck's illness, which is now believed to be of a serious nature.

A blacksmith from Hamburg named Webber has invented a cuirass which has successfully resisted bullets fired from the German military rifle at twenty paces. The blacksmith intends to make a tour of Europe with his coat.

WILLIAM WALTER PHELPS.

Lawyer and Statesman and Ex-Minister to Germany Dead.

Englewood, N. J., June 16.—William Walter Phelps is dead. Deceased was born in New York City August 24, 1839. His father, John J. Phelps, organized and became president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, and, being the only son, William Walter inherited the fortune. Entering active practice as a lawyer, he became counsel for the Rock Island and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroads, the United States Trust Company and other corporations before he was thirty years old. In Congress he took high rank as a debater almost at once, and became noted as one of the few men to whom the house would always listen. In 1881 President Garfield sent him as United States Minister to Austria, where his familiarity with the language and customs of the country, his liberal mode of life, and his intense Americanism made him a valuable representative. On the change of administration he at once tendered his resignation, and finally retired in August, 1882. He was immediately elected to congress from his old district. Immediately after the inauguration of President Harrison he appointed Phelps a member of the Berlin commission to settle the Samoan question. He performed his duties with such ability and obtained such popularity that the President afterwards appointed him minister to Germany. Phelps was familiar with German history and spoke the language, and his daughter married a German nobleman. No American minister, except Bayard Taylor, ever was so much thought of in Berlin. On his return to New Jersey, Governor Werts, a Democrat, appointed him judge of the court of appeals. His fortune, a large part of which was in railroad stocks, was about $12,000,000.

AS A LUNATIC.

Another German Prince Placed in Restraint as Insane.

Yet another prince, this time a cousin of Queen Victoria, has come to financial grief, and not only been deprived of the control of his estates by the courts, but also been placed in restraint in the lunatic asylum at Wilhelmshohe, where it may be remembered Emperor Napoleon was imprisoned after the war.

The prince in question is Alexander of Hohenlohe, son of Prince Felix, who is a brother of the Duke of Ujest, while his mother is a daughter of the savage and surly old elector of Hesse-Cassel by his morganatic marriage with the princess of Hanau. The latter's brother, by the bye, is married to that Mlle. d'Imecourt, who eloped when a young girl from school with Musurus Bey, at that time secretary of the Turkish embassy in London, marrying him and living with him for several weeks as his wife. On her imprudently returning to France, her family recovered possession of her on the ground that she was a minor, and that, not having obtained the consent of her mother to the marriage, as required by the French law, the union was invalid.

For a full year she was kept in close seclusion in a French convent, at the end of which time she made her debut in the salons of the Faubourg St. Germain, just as if nothing had ever happened, and it was later on, under the name of Mlle. d'Imecourt and as a maiden, that she became the bride of Prince Kraft of Hohenlohe, being given away by her mother's brother, General Marquis de Galliffet.

There is a large number of German princes, who, like young Prince Alexander of Hohenlohe, are under curatel, that is to say, debarred from the exercise of their rights of citizenship or of undertaking any legal contract.

Among them are Prince Alexander's brother-in-law, Prince Albert of Waldeck; Prince Augustus of Sayn-Wittgenstein, Prince Frederick Salm, Prince Charles Trautmansdorff, the Prince of Anhalt, and the young Prince Alexander's uncle, the prince of Hanau, whose many tribulations have furnished the theme for many of the chroniques scandaleuses of Germany and France.

Count Helie de Talleyrand-Perigord is about to transfer his abode to this country, all proceedings against him, both on the part of M. Lebaudy and of the public prosecutor, having been dropped, thanks to the intervention of the Prince of Wales. The young nobleman has been released, and provided by his family with an annuity of $5000, which will be paid to him so long as he deprives France of the luxury of his presence.

It is just as well to bear in mind that he comes over here with a very heavy cloud hanging over his head, and it would certainly have been preferable for the future Duke of Sagan-Talleyrand-Perigord-Valencay, etc., if he were to have proved in a court of law his innocence of the charges of forgery and fraud brought against him. As the matter now stands the inference is that he has been guilty of those crimes, and that his escape from the legal penalties thereof is due to the wealth of his mother and to the wide-reaching influence of her friends.—Exchange.

CRISPI'S CLOSE CALL.

An Assassin Fires at the Premier—The Villain Promptly Captured.

Rome, June 16.—As Premier Crispi was driving to the chamber of deputies to-day and when the vehicle turned from the Via Gregoria into the Via Capolecas, a man loitering on the sidewalk drew a revolver from his breast, rushed up to the carriage, took aim at the premier and fired.

Signor Crispi, uninjured, promptly sprang out of the carriage with the intention of seizing the would-be assassin. The man was almost immediately seized by the people attracted by the report of the revolver. In a moment the neighborhood was crowded. A rush was made for the man, who was struggling with his captors, and he would have been beaten to death had it not been for the prompt arrival of the police. The premier examined the revolver curiously. He was loudly cheered for the courage he displayed. When the sitting of the chamber opened there were loud cheers for the premier. The president told of the attempt upon Crispi's life, severely denouncing the outrage. The remarks were greeted with loud applause.

The would-be assassin gave the name of Paolo Laga, and described himself as a joiner. The police have, however, discovered that he was a member of several anarchist societies, where he was known as Marat, after the famous French revolutionist. Marat declares that he arrived in Rome this morning, charged with the mission to kill Crispi. He added that he was sorry that he had failed in his object. King Humbert, as soon as he heard of the attempted assassination of Crispi, sent him his congratulations upon his escape.

Profits of the Montreal Street Railway —A Child's Adventure.

The net profits of the Montreal Street Railway Company, after paying running expenses, city percentage, fixed charges, etc., as shown by the official figures, for the winter six months commencing October 1 last, were $70,450, an increase of $58,479.86 over the corresponding period of last year. During many previous winters the company only made expenses. The number of passengers carried in the last six winter months was 8,592,944, as against 7,240,553 during the previous winter. In March, 1894, the cars carried 1,517,880 against 1,227,115 for the same month last year. The average number carried per day in March, 1894, was 48,961, and in March, 1893, 38,984.

In St. Mary's cathedral, Kingston, on a recent Sunday, a letter was read from Archbishop Cleary, which had special reference to the election campaign now going on. It exhorted the electors to support an honest and Liberal government in preference to politicians, who were doing their utmost to abolish separate schools and injure the Catholic church. The letter also referred to the importation from the United States of secret societies for the purpose of proscribing Catholics, igniting strife and attempting to injure sectarian institutions.

A peculiarly narrow escape occurred on the Quebec express on the Canadian Pacific recently, which resulted in a detention of an hour and a half. There were on board a number of emigrants from the steamer Numidian, and a three-year-old child of one of them wandered into one of the lavatories. It was near Three Rivers when the mother missed the little one and an active search was instituted, but without result. It was at once surmised that the child had fallen from the train, which was at once backed along the line for traces of the body. To the delight of the mother and the astonishment of the other passengers the child was found sitting on the embankment just twenty miles back from where it was first missed. It was perfectly uninjured and was not even crying. It is supposed that the little one fell out of the window, and as the train was going at the rate of 35 miles and hour its escape from serious injury or death is simply wonderful under the circumstances.

The contract for the machinery for the working gates of the Sault Ste. Marie Canal has been awarded to the Canadian Engine and Locomotive company of Kingston. The company will receive between $30,000 and $50,000.

At Tavistock, Ont., lately, hail fell to a depth of two feet, and in some places was piled up in huge banks.

Happy days and restful nights result from using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It so regulates all the bodily functions and strengthens the nervous system that worry and fatigue are comparatively unknown and life is truly enjoyed. It is certainly a most wonderful medicine.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

Victoria City Electoral District.

Gentlemen:—The general election now being near at hand, and being a candidate for re-election, I wish to place my views on some of the questions commanding your attention, as well as to intimate the line of action which I shall take and the measures which I shall, if opportunity permits, support and maintain.

The party now in power have practically held office for over eleven years. Their policy has been an indefinite one on many of the questions requiring consideration. At the last general election the Opposition advocated reform in the land laws of the province, and have been able to make some important changes.

The privilege of allowing speculators and non-residents to take up large tracts of land has been taken away and the lands are now available for actual settlers.

By the efforts of the Opposition the assessment of the wild land has been much increased; the ad valorem principle of assessment according to the land value, is now the law.

There are two essential matters yet to be carried out in connection with the encouraging of agricultural settlers. First, the surveying of available lands for such a purpose and giving the necessary information by the Lands and Works Department; second, the making of roads to such settlements, so that the farmer may be able to bring his produce to market—such a policy as this must be adopted in order to develop and encourage the farming industry of our province. By so doing we shall add much to our wealth and prosperity.

The railway policy of the Government has not been a business-like one. From the time of the grant given to the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway down to the Nakusp & Slocan deal, the interests of the province and the welfare of the people have not been well guarded. On the one hand a corporation receives a large subsidy and an immense tract of land, free from taxation for ever; on the other, a private company is subsidized by guaranteeing the bonds to the full cost of the road as well as interest on the same for twenty-five years. One cannot but come to the conclusion that a Government policy of such character is likely to bring the credit of the province into disrepute.

Monopolies of any kind are to be deplored, but monopolies backed by Government aid and support are often the most difficult to overcome. Government aid to such an extent as has been given in the instances referred to, precludes other roads from being assisted or built. As an instance of this we recognize the difficulty the British Pacific Railway will have in dealing with the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway and its existing rights. Thus by the action of the present Government in the past it looks as if the province were at the mercy of ringsters and monopolists who are despoiling the people of their heritage.

I am opposed to the executive using its power to make large appropriations of money by special warrant for roads, streets, bridges, and public works, without first submitting such to the legislature. Such a course of action leads to favoritism and corruption and is not in accord with the principles of constitutional government.

I have advocated, and will continue to do so, the reduction of taxation on improvements and the abolition of taxes on mortgages. The latter impost presses doubly hard upon the borrower, and the repeal of this law would be in the interest and for the advancement of the province.

The practice followed on the eve of a general election of promising aid to public works and institutions by members of the executive should be condemned, as it is attempting to bribe the electors with their own money. The independent electors should answer this by sending men to the Legislature who will do their utmost to remove such ministers from power.

During the past four years legislation has been brought about, chiefly by the Opposition, in reforming the School Law. The residents of the cities have now greater power over the management of their schools, and more is yet desired in this particular. I shall use my best endeavors to bring this about, so that our schools may be free of all political influences.

I have also advocated further restriction on Chinese immigration and the employment of Chinese by any company seeking charters or grants from the Legislature. I have advocated and still maintain that a clause should be inserted in all bills giving such privileges or aid to prevent the employment of this class of labor.

I also have advocated the necessity of employing residents of the province instead of non-residents or foreigners in the prosecution of all works or contracts let by the government.

It is impossible in an address of this kind to touch on all questions affecting the province. I hope, however, before long to have the opportunity of addressing the electors in public meeting, at which time I will refer to matters more extensively.

Hoping that my past record as a representative in the Local Legislature has been acceptable to you, I again seek your votes and support.

I remain, yours respectfully,

G. L. MILNE.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

Victoria City Electoral District.

Gentlemen—As a candidate in the coming contest for legislative honors, and particularly as a labor candidate, I take this method of expressing some of the views I hold relating to the good government of the province.

I believe that heretofore, although workingmen have assisted largely in electing representatives to the legislature and parliament, their interests have not, generally speaking, been advanced or guarded; but on the contrary laws have been enacted whereby the greater burden of taxation has been placed upon the shoulders of the workingman, and monopolies have been fostered to the detriment of their interests and the country at large. Too many professional men and capitalists have unduly influenced the making of our laws, and I believe that a remedy may be applied by workingmen being represented in the councils of our land by men from their own ranks—men who are not only in sympathy with them, but who are in touch with their necessities.

I believe that every man is entitled to an equitable share of what his labor produces; also that enterprise and ability to organize and direct labor to the accomplishment of large undertakings deserves special consideration, but not to the extent that it is often accorded by the governments of the present day.

I would advocate a reduction in the hours of labor, and consider an eight hour law should be established by the government and enforced on all government work.

Also the establishment of a provincial labor bureau for the purpose of gathering reliable information on the labor situation, so that intending immigrants may be made fully acquainted with the true state of the labor market in the province.

I believe that as a class the Chinese are injurious to the province, as they undoubtedly ridicule our religion and laws; introduce loathsome diseases and demoralizing habits; they trade exclusively among themselves and send what wealth they may acquire from our province to enrich their own empire. I believe the government should make every effort to lessen the evil which is the result of the presence of Coolie labor, and in the absence of laws similar to those in force in Australia, our government should, when granting privileges to companies and corporations, insist on a clause in the charters granted prohibiting the employment of Asiatic labor by such corporations or companies.

I advocate a liberal railway policy, feeling sure that we must have these most important highways to assist in developing the many latent resources of the province, but am opposed to the granting of monopolies in land for speculative purposes to companies to the exclusion of settlers.

I also believe that all religious questions should be kept out of our schools, being confident that the numerous religious institutions are quite capable of dealing with that matter.

I will more fully express my views on these questions at public meetings to be held. Hoping you can see your way clear to give me your support at the polls, I am, Yours respectfully,

ARTHUR H. DUTTON.

TO THE ELECTORS

—OF—

Victoria City Electoral District.

Gentlemen:—As I am a candidate to represent you in the Provincial Legislature, I wish to give my views on some of the important questions of the day.

I hold that each man is entitled to all his labor produces; therefore, no tax should be levied on the products of labor.

The road tax, the provincial revenue tax, personal property tax, mortgage tax, taxes on improvements, and all taxes on useful trades and industries are unjust and should be abolished.

To carry out these principles, I am in favor of raising all public revenues for provincial and municipal purposes by a tax upon land values, irrespective of improvements.

This tax would lower rents, raise wages, encourage industry, equalize opportunities, and thereby benefit all.

The present electoral system gives unequal representation, and calls for legislative reform.

The monetary deposit now required from candidates for the provincial legislature should be abolished.

I am in favor of passing laws to exclude Asiatic labor from government works and prohibiting any further Asiatic immigration. When Chinese labor can be excluded from any works, by inserting clauses to that effect in charters and grants, it should be done.

I advocate a reduction in the hours of labor; an eight hour law should be established by the government and enforced on all government works.

I am in favor of establishing a Small Debts Court, to enable merchants and others to collect accounts with as little loss of time and money as possible.

I am an independent supporter of the opposition, because I feel they are inclined to go farthest in the direction of the reforms which I advocate; at the same time I wish it distinctly understood I am for measures and not for men.

As canvassing by a candidate is, in my opinion, contrary to the spirit of the ballot, it is not my intention to personally ask for votes. Trusting you may deem me a fit and proper person to represent you in the legislature, I hereby earnestly solicit your votes and influence. Faithfully yours,

W. G. CAMERON.

DOMINION VOTERS' LISTS.

The delayed Mail furnishes some further details in connection with the changes in the preparation of Dominion voters' lists in the act now before the house. Some time ago Mr. Laurier questioned Premier Thompson as to the nature of the proposed changes, and Sir John's reply is thus reported: "We propose important changes in the Franchise Act. We intend to adopt as the basis of our lists the franchises of the various provinces of Canada, with provision that the disqualifications, which have been enacted by the various legislatures, shall not apply to persons who would otherwise be entitled to vote at Dominion elections. We propose that Dominion electoral lists shall be revised from year to year, by revising officers as at present. We propose to deal with the subject of multiplex voting in a reasonable way, not adopting the principle of one man one vote, but following the principle that something more than mere temporary qualification which the voter prepared at the time he went on the various lists shall be possessed; that is to say, a man having property qualification in more than one riding shall have a vote in more than one riding, etc. I propose to take some further time in the preparation of the bill to work out a careful comparison with provincial enactments." In answer to questions put by Mr. Laurier Sir John Thompson said the time for beginning revision of the lists would be somewhat later in the years and the lists would come into force as speedily as they could be prepared. Most people will regret that the government did not effect a more substantial reform of the franchise law when they were at it. "One man one vote" is generally accepted as the correct principle in regulating the suffrage, and it should have been carried through the whole Dominion system. There is an advantage, however, in securing such reform as the government has conceded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Wm. Harty, the representative of Kingston in the late Ontario legislature, has been appointed commissioner of public works in Ontario, in succession of the Hon. C. F. Fraser. The new minister is a Catholic, like his predecessor. He is popular in Kingston, and has a very good prospect of being elected, having the strong support of Principal Grant and other prominent men. The Ontario elections take place a week from to-morrow.

When Hon. Mr. Turner is addressing the meeting this evening he should not forget that the people of Victoria are looking for a definite statement in regard to the British Pacific. The government should by this time know what statement it is prepared to make to Victorians and Mainlanders alike.

The platform of the Toronto labor party, upon which John Armstrong, the party's candidate for East Toronto, has taken his stand, is brief but comprehensive. It is as follows:

1. Grouped constituencies and proportional representation.
2. That a clause be inserted in all specifications for public works, compelling the contractor to pay the local union rate of wages and observe the local hours of labor prevailing in the locality in which such public work is being performed.
3. The referendum and initiative.
4. The removal of all taxes from the products of industry, and the substitution of a tax on land values and natural opportunities.
5. Abolition of all property qualification for holding municipal office.
6. That an eight-hour work day is desirable, and that such can be secured by legislation.

A late Ottawa dispatch says:—"Further indications that a general election for the house of commons will take place before another session, is the fact that several tons of campaign literature are being sent out from the job printing house here. The principal sheet was compiled by Dr. Montague, M. P., and is devoted to a defence of a protective tariff."

The exodus of Scandinavians this spring from New York to their homes across the sea has been nearly twice as large as in any preceding year. The hard times has driven them to their old homes where they can live about twice as cheaply as they live here. The steerage rates to all parts of the Scandinavian peninsula are lower than ever because of competition between English and German lines, and that is also an inducement for the north country men to go home. On the Venetia, of the Scandia line, which sailed recently, there were 733 Scandinavians; on the Virginia, 735, and on the Amerika, of the Thingvalla line, 648.

Winnipeg Free Press:—The minister of finance announced on the 1st of June that while the tariff was under discussion the customs duties are to stand without alteration. It is a pity that this decision was not arrived at sooner. The tariff has been wiggling about under the pressure of inharmonious manufacturers to the loss and great inconvenience of importers. There have been numerous cases in Winnipeg and elsewhere, in which importers have ordered goods and entered into contracts on the faith of the tariff as brought down by the minister of finance, and who have subsequently learned that the government did not mean what it said, and that while the importer was bound by his contract, the government was at liberty to increase their exactions, and did so increase them. There is no remedy against the government in such a case, so that the unfortunate merchants who were caught must console themselves with the reflection that if the country chooses to trust its business affairs to a government which insists on maintaining a policy that converts its finance minister into a recording clerk of the decisions of the monopolies it can expect no better treatment.

THE CAMPAIGN.

An Oppositionist Who Claims that the Three Yales Will Be Won.

Port Hammond, June 15.—Politics are getting very lively in this riding. Sword will be elected by a large majority; I don't think Dr. Lefevre will save his deposit. Major-General Kinchant, who has been in the upper country doing grand work for the opposition, says that we will carry the Three Yales, Lillooet and one Kootenay at least.

General surprise is expressed that the government should have engaged the "Jasce Building" as the polling station here, when there is a large public hall which is far more suitable. Whoever is responsible for the mistake, if it can be called such, is deserving of the severest censure.

The notice of your correspondent has been drawn to an article in the Columbian, which states that the voters in the neighborhood of the Pemberton Meadows, according to the government's arrangement, will have to travel some 65 miles to vote at the coming elections. Such an outrage is only in accord with the general acts of Davie & Co., and should be resented by the people on election day. It is also mentioned that Dr. Lefevre will retire from the contest in this riding in favor of a stronger candidate. Certainly the government nominee should not contest a riding that is almost solid for the opposition, as he will only lose his deposit, and that would be a pity.

A telegram informs us that William Keatly has been chosen opposition candidate in West Lillooet, the government candidate being Mr. Smith. R. McLeese, of Soda creek, and General Kinchant, of Hatzic prairie, are opposition candidates in Cariboo. The latter gentleman is now on his way to Barkerville. The fact that he is a non-resident will tell against him, but he hopes to win. A private letter from Barkerville to the Times says there is no doubt that Mr. McLeese will be elected. If Lillooet and Cariboo return one opposition member each the government will unquestionably be defeated.

LITERARY NOTES.

Current History for the first quarter of 1894 more than sustains the past reputation of this remarkable work as a comprehensive, able, and interesting resume of the world's doings. It contains 265 pages of reading matter, which convey the reader on a flying trip around the world, giving him in clear perspective a birds-eye view of the important events of the day in all civilized countries, stopping long enough at points to enable him to get a thorough understanding of all the salient questions, and leaving him with the conviction that he has been brought into closer touch than ever before with the great life of the world, and is better equipped to read even his daily paper and to form an intelligent estimate on the important topics on which every live citizen should be well posted. The work is admirably clear and philosophic in its presentation of facts, beautifully printed and illustrated, free from political or sectarian bias, accurate in its statements, and is endorsed by scholars and public men at home and abroad as an eminently valuable addition to any library. The back volumes, all of which are obtainable, cover the history of the past four years, and are a needed supplement to any encyclopedia or other work of reference.

The present number opens with an able sketch of Prince Bismarck's career, with his portrait as a frontispiece. Next are reviewed at length the Hawaiian, tariff and silver seigniorage questions and the business situation in the United States, the rebellion in Brazil, and the retirement of Mr. Gladstone. Among international affairs, the Behring Sea legislation, Bluefields incident, general situation in Europe, prospects of international bimetallism, etc., are fully handled. The continental divisions of the globe are then taken up, with special attention paid to United States and Canadian affairs, the proceedings in the British parliament, and the socialist and anarchist propaganda. The record of progress in the various branches of science, geographical exploration, musical and dramatic production, and the fine arts, is very complete. Over 125 new books are reviewed in crisp and interesting style; and fully 100 biographical sketches are inserted, including the obituaries of prominent persons. The price of the work is insignificant, compared with its present and future value to intelligent readers. (Buffalo, N. Y., Garretson, Cox & Co., publishers, $1.50 a year).

THE NANAIMOS.

Premier Davie's Tour—A Meeting That Failed—Mr. Smith at Wellington.

Gabriola Island, June 18.—Hon. Theo. Davie was accorded a cordial reception at the meeting held here on Saturday. His speech in tenor was somewhat similar to the one delivered the previous evening at Cedar District. It contained many promises for the faithful, and the speaker was very particular in impressing the electors with the idea that his government had always displayed a progressive policy. He got on to his favorite argument concerning his railway policy. He always admitted that the E. & N. railroad grant was a mistake, but to be sure this act never would be repeated by his government unless it was to open up roads into an inaccessible country. He assured his hearers that it was the intention of the government party to nominate Mayor Quennell as an independent supporter of the government, but he did not repeat his assertion made by him at Cedar district that they had his word of honor that Dr. Walkem would not be the candidate. Tully Boyce followed the premier, and he used his arguments against the government in an aggressive manner, the appreciation of the audience being shown by repeated applause. It was evident that Hon. T. Davie did not relish the speaker's remarks concerning the petty meanness of the premier in charging the government up with $5 railway fare to Nanaimo and at the same time carrying a free pass in his pocket, and again making an excessive charge of $4 per day for hotel expenses. Mr. Boyce appeared to have the advantage of exposing the weak points of the premier's armament and the audience were pleased to hear these little things. The audience listened very attentively to the arguments of both sides, and a quieter meeting could not be conceived. There was a very good attendance considering the small population and, the feeling seemed to be in favor of the opposition candidate.

Wellington, June 18.—On Saturday night Mr. R. Smith addressed the electors of the north riding in the Institute hall. On the platform were Messrs. McInnes, Bryden, Young, Sharp, Roos and Smith.

Mr. Smith in his speech dealt with the platform adopted by the Reform Club, and going through it section by section he showed the advantages to be derived by supporting such a policy. He was repeatedly interrupted by the Bryden clique, and as fast as he answered one question he would be asked another from another part of the house. His good humor prevailed and his answers called forth loud applause from both sides.

Mr. Bryden followed and quoted sections from a platform drafted by his party which is practically similar to the one adopted by the Nanaimo Reform Club, so that it was no wonder Mr. R. Smith charged him with borrowing. Mr. Bryden, as was expected, was constantly applauded by those whose daily bread depends upon his favor, and therefore he was spared from answering the tiresome absurd questions that were put to the other speakers.

Mr. W. Roos spoke briefly on the merits of the platform, and was well received.

Mr. Smith concluded the meeting by criticising the manner in which Mr. Bryden sought election and providing he stuck to the platform he had borrowed from the Nanaimo Reform club his chances of election would be about equal. Mr. Smith has no reason to be discouraged by his reception at Wellington, but on the contrary the feeling outside of the Bryden clique seemed to be very sympathetic.

Nanaimo, June 18.—The meeting announced to take place on the "Five Acre" blocks on Saturday night did not materialize, owing to the poor attendance of the residents. The premier probably was not aware that the "Five Acre" blocks are decidedly opposition, and as they are well acquainted with his past legislation they did not consider it worth while to attend a meeting to be addressed by him. This ought to convince the premier that his presence in the district does not in any way strengthen the chances of the election of a government candidate, and he should not repeat the experiment.

"SPEAK NOW."

To the Editor:—The citizens of Victoria do not expect to be taken into the confidence of the cabinet, but they have at least an equal right with the citizens of Yale, to know what is the policy of the government respecting the British Pacific railway. And as the Hon. J. H. Turner will have a good opportunity at to-night's meeting, either to endorse or repudiate the statement of the chief commissioner of lands and works respecting that road, it is to be hoped that he will not overlook this matter.

VICTORIAN.

QUESTIONS FOR CANDIDATES.

To the Editor: Seeing that the government candidates are to address the electors in the theatre to-night, I should like to address to each candidate a few questions through the medium of your valuable paper. I may mention that I sent a similar letter to the Colonist on Saturday for publication in Sunday's Colonist, but that paper evidently refused to publish my letter. I hope that the Times will show a little more consideration.

I ask each candidate if he will be good enough to answer the following questions at the public meeting to be held tonight:

1. If you are elected will you use your best endeavors to get the fire companies' aid amendment act of 1871 repealed in so far as it gives the city power to tax each fire insurance company doing business in Victoria $300 per annum? Should a substitute be insisted upon will you support an amendment to the municipal act to give the city power to license each fire insurance company, said license not to exceed $100 per annum?
2. Will you support an amendment to the municipal act to abolish all trade licenses at present in force in Victoria except in the case of liquors and tobacco?
3. Will you support the repeal of the present government tax on mortgages?
4. What policy will you adopt in order to get more settlers on the land in British Columbia?
5. Do you approve of the Dominion government bleeding this province to the extent of $1,300,000 per annum?

The electors are heartily sick of hearing candidates continually harping on the Nakusp & Slocan railway, and it is sincerely to be hoped that we will get an expression to-night of the policy to be adopted in the future if the present party should be returned to power, and let us hope, which ever party is returned that their policy will be the one best calculated to develop the resources of British Columbia and make it the brightest and most prosperous province in the Dominion.

The Toronto Globe publishes a circular which it says has been sent out by the Divisional Council of the P. P. A. requesting all councils in the city to take notice that the order has, after full deliberation, endorsed the four conservative candidates in Toronto at the coming election. These candidates, the circular says, are endorsed because of their individual record, and their individual replies to questions duly sent them by committees representing the order.

J. B. Tyrrell, of the Geological Survey, who explored the Barren Lands west of Chesterfield Inlet last year, recently left Ottawa for the same locality. Tyrrell has been granted six months leave of absence from the department for the purpose of making the exploration. Dr. Selwyn did not desire to send Tyrrell out again, but private enterprise is sending him out. The governor-general takes great interest in the question, and is furnishing the major portion of funds. Munro Ferguson, one of the governor's aides, puts up one thousand dollars and accompanies Tyrrell. A Toronto gentleman also contributes a thousand. Lord Aberdeen furnishes the balance of the appropriation. Mr. Tyrrell will take two carrier pigeons with him on his present trip for the purpose of sending back messages from the Northern Hudson's Bay wilderness to civilization.

—Arrangements have been completed for the moonlight garden party to be held this evening at the Caledonia grounds. Several hundred invitations have been issued. A good time is promised those who attend.

—The report that the Spokane & Northern and Nelson & Fort Sheppard railways were not operating is untrue. There was a certain amount of trouble, but none of a serious nature, and trains are running from Spokane to Nelson on schedule time.

—Residents at Oak Bay and the numerous picnickers who visit that popular resort feel grateful for the water tap the city has supplied for public use there. There has been much inconvenience hitherto from the wnt of a water supply. The fountain is near the end of the tramway line.

—Ald. Humphrey has a notice on the city hall bulletin board announcing that he will ask leave at the next regular meeting of the city council to introduce a by-law to be known as the 'Sunday Observance By-law, 1894." Ald. Munn's two motions on electric light matters will also be taken from the board for to-night's meeting.

—Dr. H. Conrad Hinkle was before the police magistrate this morning, charged with a breach of the medical act. It is alleged that he practiced his profession without first having registered and paid the fee required for his license. E. E. Wootton appeared for the prosecution and J. P. Walls for the defence. The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

—J. T. Allison, of Princeton, in the Similkameen country, is in the city. He came out over the Hope trail on Friday last, and reports that all of the bridges and trestles on it have been carried away. However, when the water subsides, cattle may be driven over it. He says that there was a great rise in the Similkameen and all of his barns and other outbuildings were carried away. Others in the vicinity fared the same way.

—Admirers of the cup that cheers filled the police court dock to overflowing this morning. Mrs. Ferguson paid $10 for her lark. Edward McNeil paid the same amount. Con Hogan appeared for the first time, and was convicted and discharged with only a warning. Charley, an Indian, was remanded until to-morrow in order to find out where he was served. Jim, another Siwash, who had a bottle in his possession, was convicted and fined $25, with the option of a month in jail. He will probably pay.

—The steamer Premier brought 95 eastern passengers last evening, all destined for southern points. Fifty of them left on the City of Kingston and the remainder on the Umatilla, both boats being held until 10.30 o'clock. Of those who left on the Kingston 22 were members of a Raymond party of 41, the others having reached here on Saturday night. The Raymond party in point of wealth and social position is the smartest ever piloted by that company. It is made up almost exclusively of New York people. Among those in it are Mrs. Bryton Ives, E. H. N. Lougman and wife, L. M. Palmer and sons, and many others almost equally prominent.

—The Knights of Pythias in Nanaimo decorated the graves of deceased brethren on Saturday afternoon. A special train left this city at 8.40 o'clock yesterday morning with five hundred knights and their friends. At Duncan's two hundred people boarded the cars, which were crowed. At Nanaimo three hundred knights belonging to Damon, Myrtle and Wellington lodges met the visitors. A procession was formed at the station and marched to Pythian hall, where the members were dismissed until two o'clock, when the march to the new cemetery, on Comox road, commenced. The B. C. B. G. A. band headed the procession, followed by the uniformed knights and members of the various lodges. The Nanaimo band was in the procession. At the cemetery the knights visited twenty-nine graves and covered them with beautiful floral offerings. Grand Prelate Col. A. A. Richardson read the eulogy. After returning to the opera house the large gathering sat down to luncheon, which was furnished by the local lodges. At 7 o'clock the bands played several selections. The return train started from Nanaimo at 8.30, reaching this city at midnight. The committee in charge deserve great credit for the manner in which they carried out all arrangements. The kindness of Victorians in furnishing numerous floral decorations was appreciated by the Nanaimo knights. Among the officers present at the ceremonies were Grand Chancellor J. C. Byrne, Past Grand Chancellor H. J. Ainslie, J. M. Hughes and J. Crossan, Past Supreme Representative Col. H. F. W. Behnsen, Capt. H. Dobbs, Chancellor Commanders C. J. Hall, Cole and Watson.

a stone from a foundation and it is weakened; a picket from a fence gives it an ill appearance, the vacancy destroys its symmetry, and the void is at once apparent. A hole the size of a pin's head in a kitchen utensil detracts from its usefulness, and a spoke from the wheel of a vehicle at once causes comment. It is the same with the mouth of a human being. An absent tooth gives the mouth the appearance of an "aching void." The symmetry is forever gone, the features are distorted, and already the process of decay has begun. In time other teeth go by the board, and then succeeds a row of blackened and disfigured stumps. Crown and bridge work is a specialty in dental science, and of which Dr. H. B. Findley is a master. By these processes the mouth is made whole, decay of teeth arrested and the features restored to their original appearance.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

The President's Review of Financial Situation at the Annual Meeting.

Canada Fairly Prosperous Considering the World-Wide Depression.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held on the 4th inst. in the banking room of the institution. The president, Sir Donald Smith, occupied the chair.

Sir Donald Smith, in moving the adoption of the annual report, said that the fact of the bank having earned $1,313,289, or within a fraction of 11 per cent. on the paid-up capital, would be regarded by the shareholders as very satisfactory. The profits, while fully up to the average of the preceding six years, had been appreciably larger since the rate of interest had fallen to what had come to be looked upon as a presumably low level. The period had been a trying one in many respects; trade the world over had suffered a remarkable diminution in volume and value; credits had been contracted and trade diminished, but Canada had been, considering all this, remarkable as furnishing an example of a fairly prosperous community of people, and with the splendid recuperative powers of Canada a state of convalescence would speedily be reached. During the past ten months the exports from Canada had amounted to $94,300,000, a gain of $1,660,000 over the corresponding period of the previous year. During the same period the value of imports had declined by $3,000,000. This was neither formidable nor regrettable, as it indicated a cautious, conservative policy on the part of Canadian merchants that was eminently desirable under present conditions of trade. For the first four months of this year the banking clearances amounted to $14,796,000, compared with $21,468,000 in the same period of 1893, a decrease of 31 per cent., and it was to be regretted that no elements of revival could be observed. In Great Britain the period of 1893 was one of retrogression, but somewhat less conspicuous than its immediate predecessor. He hoped that the bottom had been touched. Reference was again made to the utter collapse in Australia, as again showing that Canada had done fairly well compared with other countries. Sir Donald pointed out what appeared to be the advantage of our currency system over that of the United States. In Canada and Great Britain the bank circulation rises and falls in comparison with the requirements of trade, while it did not so expand or contract across the line. In the United States the amount of currency outstanding on May 1 was $92,500,000 greater than on the same date last year. Was it any wonder that $45,000,000 of gold was exported from that country? Referring to the present state of trade of Canada, Sir Donald alluded to the continued decrease of railway earnings as a sign of the times that could not be ignored. This meant reduced expenses and a decrease in the employment of labor and the circulation of money. The farming community has also suffered from the low price of wheat and other cereals, and the cattle trade had been less prosperous. On the other hand, several branches of farming had increased, notably pork and dairy products, and he was glad to note that the province of Quebec had excelled in this regard. The lumbering interests were in a fairly satisfactory state, but the manufacturing industries had been less active. But the completion of the tariff revision by the government—

Mr. John Morrison—Hear, hear.

Sir Donald Smith—This tariff revision should remove the elements of disturbance which had been more or less felt since the opening of the year. Reviewing all the circumstances, the shareholders had cause to be satisfied with the outcome of the bank's business during the twelve months ending April 30. Ten banks had $1,351,904 of dividends during that period; four of the largest of these, with a capital and reserve of $22,800,000, paid dividends, $602,000, or only two thousand dollars more than the Bank of Montreal, with a capital and reserve of $18,000,000. Sir Donald feelingly referred to the death of two of the directors during the year, Sir John Abbott and Mr. Peter Redpath, and then appropriately alluded to the knighting of Sir William Van Horne and Sir Frank Smith by the Queen. So long as such honors were so worthily bestowed they would be endorsed by every citizen of Canada. He closed by expressing on behalf of himself and the directors their sense of the ability, industry and zeal exercised by the general manager and his staff in the interests of the bank.

The president then called upon Mr. E. S. Clouston, the general manager, who [illegible] the circulation showed a falling off of $488,000, a sign of general inactivity in business. The deposits not bearing interest had decreased $1,000,000; deposits bearing interest had increased $3,700,000, chiefly from special deposits. The bank has invested $2,207,000 in the highest class United States railway and other securities. Their overdue debts had increased $171,000 and loss had been fully provided for. He referred to the trying year through which they had just passed and reviewed what had taken place in England, Australia and the United States. Canada, he said, had been more fortunate than most countries; still heavy speculative losses had been met by the more adventurous of the country. Fortunately there had been no heavy overproduction or importation and Canada had no currency question like the United States to deal with. The real danger last summer was the unsatisfactory condition of the cash reserve of some of the banks. A reserve to be effective in a crisis must first be cash, and for a second line of defence, foreign balances and securities readily salable outside the country.

The lesson of last year will have been productive of good if it has taught the necessity of some stronger cash reserve. He commended the caution of the Canadian government in not being a borrower this year, but regretted that the same prudence had not been displayed by some municipal corporations, whose rulers continue to incur liabilities at an excessive rate. Their bank, he said, had come through the year with increased credit, and he said the shareholders had reason to be satisfied with the statement laid before them. He only hoped that they would do as well next year.

[illegible] the directors had [illegible]. Their president had put the very best face on a very poor state of affairs. They had heard a great deal of depression; but no one appeared to explain the cause. Why, everything possible was being done to destroy trade and commerce. Cotton mills, rolling mills et hoc genus we had; but we had very few people to supply. The bank had been going into the railway business to the extent of no less than 18 per cent. of its capital. To carry on that kind of business with success the board would require more ability than some were disposed to give them credit for (laughter). The contingent fund had increased $10,000 in four years. That was to say, it had taken four years to recover the position in which they had stood then. Interest-bearing deposits had increased $8,500,000 during the past four years. From the vast volume of business done, a bonus of at least two per cent. had been expected. It was better that the shareholders should have that money than that it should be scattered, no one knew where (laughter).

Mr. John Crawford thought that Mr. Morrison had not quite covered all the ground. He thought there was nothing startling in the bank statement, threatened as we had been with drastic treatment by our neighbors on the other side of the line. The people of Canada had reason to be proud of the conservative policy pursued by the banks of Canada generally, and by the Bank of Montreal in particular. The Bank of Montreal had been the pioneer in every sound movement when the danger signal had been raised. The speaker agreed that the fat dividends of brighter days could hardly be expected just now; but economical administration might effect a great deal. Mr. Crawford had received some bank forms from London, England, which he would submit to the board, and which he favored as providing for much fuller information for the shareholders than was given by the Canadian statements. He referred to the "thrilling incident" which occurred in the Bank of England some months ago. He thought that that incident provided a valuable object lesson to bankers the world, who should adopt for a motto, "vigilance." Canadian bank officers were of higher reputation perhaps than any; but, still with a proper system of supervision Mr. May could never have hoodwinked the Bank of England directors as he did.

Mr. John J. Arnton advocated the payment of quarterly dividends. He pointed out the advantages of such a system.

Mr. Crawford asked that this question of quarterly dividends be brought before the board at an early opportunity.

Mr. Morrison agreed on most points with his friend Mr. Crawford, but he was totally opposed to a quarterly dividend. He only knew of one bank that had paid a quarterly dividend, and the shareholders had soon had to pay a double liability. It was all very well to talk about widows and orphans; but widows and orphans should practice economy as well as everybody else.

Sir Donald Smith, in putting the report to the meeting, said, referring to the hopeful tone of the report referred to by Mr. Morrison, that the board had endeavored to lay the position clearly before the directors. The $2,207,000 invested in the United States railway bonds was invested in the very best securities, and the bonds could easily be converted into cash. Sir Donald agreed with Mr. Morrison about quarterly dividends. Economy and provision were very useful virtues, and should be cultivated.

The old board of directors were re-elected as follows: Sir Donald Smith, Senator Drummond, W. C. McDonald, R. B. Angus, A. T. Paterson, E. B. Greenshields, Hugh McLennan, W. H. Meredith and A. F. Gault.

THE VEGETABLE DIET.

An Error That May Be Made Unless Care is Exercised.

While talking yesterday with Edward Atkinson on another matter I asked him if he had heard of any movements in the way of promoting vegetarian diets. "I have given some attention to this matter," said he, "and I observed your statement in the Advertiser of Tuesday last. I have also received an account from New York of a dinner given at a leading hotel there by an apparently somewhat numerous vegetarian society. A long list of courses of vegetarian food, varied only by eggs and milk, without meat, was submitted. The fault I observed in this very extensive bill of fare was the absence, or almost total absence, of any nitrogenous element.

"Phsiologists impute to this element in our diet the development of muscles and strength. Without it people may starve on an excess of starch and fat. Great attention is now being given to the element of nitrogen, both in the nutriments of the soil and the plant, as well as the beast and man. The importance of the lentil comes in at this point. Beans, peas, lentil and other leguminous plants are the chief source of nitrogen among races and nations who either do not eat meat at all, like the natives of India, or who cannot afford to eat meat, like the natives of southern Europe. Lentil, when converted into soup stock I find extremely palatable. Its use is hardly known in this country, except among the Germans and Italians. Fruits and bananas are a source of nitrogen.

"All kinds of nuts, especially peanuts, are very rich in this food element. Among the other varieties of food imported for the consumption of our Italian population, are the large chestnuts of Southern Europe, hulled or dried or converted into flour.

"It would not be difficult for anyone to make up a vegetarian diet in good proportion without overloading the digestive organs with an excess of food, if attention was given to the selection of these elements of nitrogen. My comment on the bill of fare at the hotel in New York was that people 'didn't know beans.' There was hardly a trace of the nitrogenous element in the whole menu; even cheese was missing. It is possible that these remarks may be of interest at the present time."—Boston Advertiser.

ANOTHER BIG TELESCOPE.

Constructed for the Observatory of the Denver University.

Professor Herbert A. Howe, the astronomer of the Chamberlain observatory at the University of Denver, is now in this city superintending the shipment to that institution of a big telescope. The instrument was constructed here, says the Washington Star, and persons who have passed recently along Second street southwest just below the point where it loses itself in Maryland avenue have seen its huge cylindrical form suspended, like Mahomet's coffin, between heaven and earth, in the side yard of a modest two-story double brick building, and wondered what it was for. For several months George N. Saegmuller, the proprietor of the establishment, and the scientific workers in his employ have been engaged in the construction of this telescope, which is considered one of the most complete in existence. Professor Howe showed a pardonable pride when talking of his pet that is to be.

"This is one of the finest telescopes that have ever been manufactured," said he, "and with the exception of the Lick Observatory instrument it will be the largest west of the Allegheny mountains until the great Yerkes telescope to be erected at Chicago is finished. The lenses for the instrument before you were made by Alvin Clark of Cambridge. They are 21 1-2 inches in diameter, and when placed in position will give an aperture of a little over 20 inches. The telescope itself is 25 feet long and is made of steel tubing, which is only one-sixteenth of an inch thick at the eye end. It has been designed for visual, photographic and spectroscopic work, and its mechanism is simply short of wonderful."

The professor and Mr. Saegmuller explained the clockwork and the various ingenious appliances by which the great tube will be as easily handled as the reporter could handle his lead pencil, and indicated their objects. One great improvement which this instrument has over others is a dial of intricate workmanship but simple action. Heretofore, in order to find a star or planet which it was desired to examine the observer would take his position at the eye piece of the telescope and then direct an assistant below to turn the instrument until the star came within the field of the lens. With the dial mentioned, however, it will be possible to turn the telescope so as to cover any star that may be desired by taking the nautical almanac and making the points on the dial agree with the figures of the inclination of the star which the almanac contains.

In other words the telescope may be pointed at any object in the heavens in less than a minute, and the observer may then go up and take his seat and pursue his investigations without delay. The instrument which Mr. Saegmuller has completed cost $10,000, and the lenses $11,000. Of course there are a number of delicate instruments which will accompany the greater one, and among them is the micrometer, an instrument that is used in measuring all celestial distances. The marvellous delicacy of this machine may be imagined when it is known that it will measure the fifty-thousandths of an inch. The entire weight of the telescope will be, including its moving parts at the base, about twenty-five thousand pounds, or less than half as much as any similar instrument of its size now in use. Professor Howe is hopeful of achieving excellent results with his prize.

"The atmosphere of Colorado is particularly good for telescopic work," he remarked, "and the base of this instrument, when placed in position, will be just 5400 feet above the level of the sea. The observatory is about a mile and a half southeast of Denver, and during the summer our winds are almost invariably from that quarter, and will thus blow the smoke of the city in a direction opposite to us. In photographic work, particularly, we should be able to accomplish our share towards the advancement of that branch of astronomical research."

Professor Howe will carry the lenses, which are packed up in two square leather boxes, out west with him in a Pullman car. They are too precious to be entrusted to an express company because any rough usage would smash them into smithereens.

A nine-inch equatorial telescope is being made by Mr. Saegmuller for one of the biggest German observatories.

IT WAS LUCK.

Extraordinary Results Following Trivial Happenings.

Dr. Lafferty of New Orleans recently delivered a lecture on "Lee's Lack of Luck," says the Times-Democrat. The doctor told how two English snobs at a restaurant in Paris by their sneers drove Murat out of service as a waiter, and through this action Murat became a marshal of France and King of Naples. [illegible] were numerous in ancient and modern history, and there were also many examples that went to show how many of the ancients believed in good luck or good fortune. Napoleon had lost Waterloo through the mere accident of bringing on an attack of sick headache through eating onion and lamb against the advice of his physician.

In 1866 a quarrel between Conkling and Blaine decided the presidency of the United States many years afterward, when Blaine ran against Cleveland.

Abraham Lincoln, after being a member of congress, desired to secure a clerkship in Washington, but he was defeated by Justin Butterfield. He was disappointed but had he not been defeated he would have spent his life in obscurity instead of becoming President of the United States.

Oliver Cromwell was once on board a ship bound for America, but he was taken back by a constable, and the result was that he became one of the greatest men England ever knew.

Ulysses S. Grant would not have been a military man had it not been that his rival for a West Point cadetship had been found to have six toes on each foot instead of five.

Of a Church of England minister cured of a distressing rash, by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mr. RICHARD BIRKS, the well-known Druggist, 207 McGill st., Montreal, P. Q., says:

performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular being that of a little daughter of a Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years, in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and, at my recommendation, at last began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. FOR THE NEW SCHOOL YEAR.

Trustee Board Makes Many Changes in the Assignment of Teachers.

The school trustees sat again on Saturday evening to finish the task of arranging the teaching staff for the new school year. There was a full board present, Trustee J. Stuart Yates taking his seat again. The two new schools are to be opened next term, and to arrange for teachers for them many changes were necessary. No new teachers were appointed, but a large amount of transferring was done. The staff as it appeared when the board's deliberations were over was as follows:

BRITISH POLITICS.

Lord Rosebery's Attitude on Home Rule and the Lords.

New York, June 2.—Mr. George W. Smalley cables from London to the Tribune: Lord Rosebery's visit to Birmingham and his various speeches in Mr. Chamberlain's dominions, present him in a new attitude. Hitherto he has held the balance fairly even between the different sections of his party and has shown his desire to keep a hold on that moderate body which both inside and beyond the party looked to him with hope. He would prefer, no doubt, still to retain all the support he could get from that and all other quarters, but circumstances force him to choose. The labor element has not responded to his appeal, or not responded in any way which has much immediate practicability to a hard-pressed minister. The parliamentary situation was critical. The budget coming on, the Welsh four still mutinous, the Parnellites hostile, various cliques and persons, whose interests or principles are affected by the budget, wavering, it became necessary to take a different line, and Lord Rosebery took the Irish line. There was no compact body in the House of Commons to whom he could appeal, except that wing of the Irish Nationalists nominally led by Mr. McCarthy. They were supposed to be friendly, but lacking in zeal. As Lord Rosebery said of himself last August with reference to home rule, he was a witness, but not an enthusiastic witness. So of the Irish. Enthusiasm was needed on both sides. Lord Rosebery has supplied at Birmingham what was deficient in his House of Lords' speech, and the McCarthyites, not to be outdone in good will, responded by trooping over from Ireland in an unbroken phalanx and crowding the ministerial lobby in every direction on the budget. Lord Rosebery now thinks it an "insult" to ask him, as Mr. Chamberlain did, whether he is for home rule or whether he is for Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill of last year. Some of his own friends think that the very fervor of his indignation betrays a consciousness that his position has been doubtful, or, if not his position, his private feelings. Nothing, they say, is more common than for a minister to oppose a measure in the cabinet, and, when he is beaten in the cabinet, defend in parliament what he attacked in council with his colleagues. Not otherwise can government by cabinet be carried on. There it is where the majority must rule, unless one strong will rules. Whatever dissensions may exist in private among ministers, they must in public present a united front to the enemy. That view would relieve Lord Rosebery from censure. But he needs no relief. He is not supposed to have resisted home rule. Lukewarmness was his offence. He is lukewarm no longer on the general principle. He upholds the principle with firmness, perhaps with something of the ardor of a new convert. He reserves his lukewarmness for Mr. Gladstone's bill. He does not think that or any other bill perfect. He treats it as a meritorious effort to carry out home rule policy, and promises to make another effort to settle this question; and he closes his series of speeches in Birmingham, four or five altogether, with a testimony of the closeness of the union between the Liberal party and the Irish party, and a profession of gratitude, plainly sincere, for the support of the Irish, in spite of the opposition in Ireland from a powerful interest, "and in spite of their honest and honorable poverty."

The moderate and rational view still prevails in Lord Rosebery's mind respecting the House of Lords. "I look to the Leeds conference," said he, "for guidance and inspiration," and he added the interesting information that the calling of the Leeds conference was "spontaneous"—spontaneous, I suppose, with Mr. Schnadhorst, whose name is appended to the summons. It is still more interesting to hear that Lord Rosebery has never met with one who would explain to him the machinery, the constitutional machinery, by which the House of Lords could be ended. Therefore he is a mender and not an ender. He told the too zealous enders plainly that the House of Lords can be abolished only by a bill duly passed by both houses of parliament. He had no idea, he added, how the House of Lords could be induced to pass its own death sentence. He sets aside the proposal to create five or six hundred peers. It is a question whether the crown could be asked to create them, a question whether it would create them if asked, a question what they would do if created. This douche of cold sense is not received by his radical supporters, but they have not an umbrella ready. So great is the parliamentary pressure that another concession had to be made at Birmingham. Lord Rosebery promised, or as good as promised, the Welsh disestablishers that their bill shall pass the House of Commons this session. After that, and when it gets to another place, he can do no more. This has but partly appeased the Welsh irreconcileables. Having got this much by irreconcileability and revolt, they think they can get more by persevering in that policy. So they threaten still to persevere and to vote against the ministry as occasion may serve.

Speeches have been so numerous this week and so important on both sides as again to give rise to reports of an early dissolution. Mr. Morley was very cheerful to his constituents at Newcastle and sank the philosopher into the partisan. The Duke of Devonshire, at Southampton, appeared still doubtful about Lord Rosebery's eagerness about home rule, pointing out that while the prime minister professed himself convinced of its necessity, he quietly put it on one side and proceeded to other subjects. The duke, nevertheless, thinks home rule an imminent danger. Mr. Balfour, who spoke last night at a club dinner, contented himself with chafing Lord Rosebery, whose speech he described as consisting of extracts from Mr. Chamberlain, edited and explained for the prime minister. But perhaps Mr. McCarthy's statement looks more like dissolution than any other. He declares it impossible to conceal any longer the fact that without more funds the regular attendance of Irish Nationalists in Parliament will be impossible. Of course if they go the government goes too, and dissolution or resignation will not be long postponed. This week the Irish have been on hand and Thursday, which was reckoned as a critical moment, proved a good night for the government in the house, their majorities running up to 45 and never running below 31. It was supposed the opposition were bent on mischief and nothing above 20 was expected.

The Hungarian government has just commissioned the painter Munkacsy to paint a picture representing the appeal of Marie Theresa to her subjects in 1741, when her country was menaced by Frederick the Great. She will be pictured in the well known act of showing her child Joseph to the assemblage. It will hang in the parliament house at Pesth. The Hungarian government has also ordered from him a series of illustrations for the grand volume to be issued on the 1000th anniversary of the nation.

At a recent lecture before the Royal Institute at London on the effects of extreme cold, Professor Dewar exhibited an experiment which has probably never been seen before. He showed a frozen and broken soap bubble. Into an open vessel he poured some liquified air. The intense cold caused by the evaporation made a miniature snow storm immediately above the vessel. He then lowered a soap bubble on the end of a rod into the receptacle. The bubble became darker, the movement of the iridescent film grew slower, it contracted somewhat in size, and in a moment was frozen solid. A slight movement broke it from the rod and cracked the bubble into two pieces, which floated on the liquid air, and gradually accumulated a tiny snowdrift from the freezing air above.

The Count de Lesseps' woes over his canal schemes seem not to be over yet. It was supposed he got through the Suez Canal business with great credit and profit, and that all his troubles came from the later scheme at Panama, but the impression is wrong. A number of Egyptian noblemen have begun proceedings against him and other early members of the Suez Canal company in Paris for the misappropriation of moneys amounting to several million pounds sterling, in the Suez business. The documents on which the action is based is given under the seal of Said-Pasha, viceroy of Egypt when the canal was built, by which, in accordance with the acts of concession, he conferred ordinary and founders' shares upon the members of his household and army.

One of the most tragic events ever heard of in the business world took place some years ago in St. Petersburg. The agent of a banker, who had been sent to draw the sum of 15,000 roubles, lost the package of bank notes while returning from the bank. The money was picked up by a clerk, who, instead of giving the funds at once to the rightful owner, followed the agent to his destination and ascertained his name. The clerk then returned home, hesitating in his mind how he should act. When he arrived there a violent quarrel took place between him and his wife, the latter wishing to keep the money. The clerk, however, on the following day went to the house of the owner to deliver the money. While there he was told that the agent had committed suicide the night before, on account of the loss. Overcome with remorse, the clerk returned home, where he found that during his absence his wife had hanged herself from vexation at not having kept the money. He immediately cut down the body and hung himself with the same rope.

THE MATTAWAN WRECK.

Fire Was the Cause of the Bridge Disaster on the C. P. R.

The Winnipeg Free Press of June 12 gives the following particulars of the accident near Kaministiquia station, a short distance west of Fort William:

There was a large crowd at the C. P. R. station last night when the passengers of Saturday's wrecked express arrived in the city. On board the train that went through the bridge there were about forty passengers, all of whom, with the exception of the two victims and the four Baker children, safely reached the city at 10.50 o'clock last night. Many of the passengers in the colonist and first-class cars lost all their property, principally coats, hats, shawls and shoes, being satisfied with saving their lives, and not venturing to return to the cars after once landing on solid ground.

Among the passengers was Mr. Steen, of the Commercial. Speaking to a Free Press reporter shortly after his arrival, he said:

"That was my fifth train wreck, the third in five years. I was in the sleeper at the time, about 2.30 in the afternoon, and as soon as I heard the sharp crack of the airbrake and the sudden jolt I knew it was a wreck. I stepped out of the car with others to look around. The air was filled with smoke and the heat was oppressive. The sight that we saw was certainly astonishing. The bridge was about 113 feet long, and was a wooden structure placed on stone abutments. The company intended to place an iron double tracked bridge across some time, and the stone part was built with that object in view. The river Mattawan is very wide on each side of the railway, and the water rushes underneath through a narrow channel with tremendous force. The engine and tender had gone partially down stream; the baggage car was lying directly below in the water; the mail and express was on top; the colonist sleeper had crashed through the mail car, and the first-class car was lying by itself near the east bank. All were in the water, some submerged. No bush or bush fire could have ignited the bridge had not some of the old material from the wooden supports been lying near the bridge, and this dry material made quite a fire, igniting the upper part. The fire soon spread to all the cars, and in ten minutes those portions of the cars not submerged in the stream were burned to the water's edge. In ten minutes also those who were saved were out of harm's way and in ten minutes those who were lost were gone forever. We thought the engineer and fireman had gone sure, but they were seen at the opposite abutment after a few minutes waving to us. How they got out from the cab they cannot tell. They were thrown out perhaps; anyway they found themselves crawling up the opposite bank of the stream. The baggageman, Braithwaite, found himself in the water and swam out. The express messenger was never found. The mail agent, James, said he saw the end of his car burst out, and he made for the opening. The colonist car passengers got out through windows at the end. In the case of the four children they were passed out to persons on the bank, and the last one was thrown out, all by the mother; she went back, and never reappeared. All this time the flames were making rapid progress, and soon hardly any portion of the train was visible excepting the smokestack of the engine and a few charred portions. The dining car hung over the opening a few feet. Behind it was the regular sleeper and an empty one. Few of the passengers sustained injury, excepting bruises and scratches."

About twenty bags of mail, which were mostly newspapers, went underneath the water with the baggage car, but were saved. They were soaked through and came in last night. Two pouches of letters from Ottawa to the Territories were also saved. Mail Agent James has a painful bruise on the left leg and a cut over the nose. He lost his clothes, containing his watch and a sum of money. All the baggage and portions of the express matter were saved.

The following official report of Saturday's accident was given to the press yesterday:

At 14.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon No. 1 express was derailed at the bridge over Mattawan river, twenty-eight miles west of Fort William. When the eastbound express passed at 12 o'clock everything was all right and no fire in close proximity to the bridge. It appears, however, that a small bush fire to the south worked down towards the track, burning an old log building and a portion of the old bridge on the Dawson road, and finally communicated to the bridge, which is a 113 foot Howe truss span on stone abutments, weakening it so that it went down when the engine struck it. The engine is lying in the river. The combination mail and express, baggage, colonist and first-class coach, including mails, baggage and express matter, were destroyed by fire communicated from the burning bridge. The dining car and two sleepers were saved all right.

A passenger named Mrs. Arthur Baker, of Hochelaga, was drowned in the river, her body being recovered a couple of hours later some distance down the stream. Four small children, between the ages of ten and two and a half, who were with her, escaped uninjured, and are now being cared for by the railway authorities at Fort William. The children and remains of Mrs. Baker will go east to Montreal by the first train, a lady from Fort William being sent in charge of the children by the railway company.

The express messenger, Mert Brown, about 24 years of age, residing in Toronto, is missing, although diligent search has been made for his body.

Engineer J. Elms and Fireman J. Whitehurst escaped from the wreck on the west bank of the river and were brought to the east side by a boat obtained from Kaministiquia. Elms is a good deal bruised and slightly scalded. He was reported doing very well yesterday morning. Whitehurst is badly bruised, his nose and jawbone being broken, and is somewhat scalded. Injuries are not dangerous, and he was doing fairly well yesterday.

THE GROWING OF A SOUL.

Hear ye this parable. A man
 Did plant a garden. Vine and tree
Alike, in course of time, began
 To put forth fair and pleasantly.
The rain of heaven, the persuading sun
Came down alike on earth and every one.

Yet some trees wilful grew and some
 Strong vines grew gaily in the sun,
With gaudy leaves, that even come
 To naught. And yet each flaunting one
Did flourish on triumphantly and glow
Like sunset clouds in all their moving show.

But lo! the harvest found them not.
 The soul had perished from them. Mold
And muck and leaf lay there to rot,
 And furnished nourishment untold
To patient tree and lowly creeping vine
That grew as the Husbandman's design.

Hear then this lesson; hear and heed
 I say that chaff shall perish; say
Man's soul is like unto a seed
 To grow unto the Judgment day.
It grows and grows if he will have it grow,
It perishes if he must have it so.

CRICKET.

SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

The second eleven of the Victoria Cricket club defeated the Islanders, the score being 61-59; a team from the Royal Arthur won from the United Banks in the first inning, score 90-49; the Albions defeated Victoria College by an innings and 63 runs.

YACHTING.

A CLOSE FINISH.

The Daisy Bell won Saturday's yacht race after an interesting brush, in which the Bell and the Volage took the most prominent parts. The entries were: Volage, rating 9.8; Star, .54; Swallow, .8; Victoria, 1.2; Edith, .35; Daisy Bell, 1.6. The Volage finished 31-2 minutes ahead of the Bell, but the Bell, being allowed 7:46 minutes, was the winner.

THE WHATCOM REGATTA.

It is announced that Captain E. B. Leaming estimates that there will be 100 yachts and 1,000 yachtsmen at the international regatta at Whatcom on July 4. Preparations are already being made to receive the visitors, and a jolly good time is promised to all who attend. Victoria will be well represented at the meeting of the racers.

LACROSSE.

AN UNBROKEN RECORD.

The Westminster lacrosse team met and defeated the Vancouver team at Beacon Point on Saturday, thus continuing their record of victories. The match was a hard fought one, the score being four to three. The standing of the teams in the race for the pennant is:

	Played.	Won.	Lost.
Westminster	3	3	0
Victoria	2	1	1
Vancouver	3	0	3

EXCITING MATCH.

The old opponents, the James Bays and Stars, met on Saturday for the first time this season. The Bays played the best lacrosse at first but the endurance of the Stars commenced to tell before the close of the match. The Bays finally won by a score of 3 to 2 after an interesting and exciting match.

THE GUN.

VICTORIA AT TACOMA SHOOT.

The tenth annual tournament of the Sportsmen's Association of the Northwest at Tacoma came to a close on Saturday and the Victorians returned home yesterday. The first event of the day Maclure, Ware, Crocer, Hope and Van Zandt divided first money on a straight score.

B. H. John won first in the tenth event of 15 singles on a score of 15 straight, and Barlow and Ellis second with 14 each. The Parker gun contest resulted in a tie between Maclure and Weiler of Victoria and Ellis and Kimball of Tacoma—all making a straight score. The first shoot off at ten birds resulted in a second tie each killing nine birds. In the final shoot off Weiler won on a clean score having killed 29 out of 30 birds.

Brief Locals.

—Miss Lillian M. Phelps, W. C. T. U. lecturer, will not lecture in Temperance hall to-night, as announced yesterday, she having been delayed in reaching the city. An announcement of her meetings will be made in a day or two.

—The steamer Premier brough 20 pouches of eastern mail on Saturday evening and 236 bags last night, cleaning everything up to date. The steamer R. P. Rithet left New Westminster at two o'clock today with one day's eastern mail aboard.

—A match race between J. Sehlee's Prince and Weiler King's Electric for $50 a side was made this afternoon. The horses will sprint three hundred yards at Beacon Hill at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. J. Millington will ride Prince and Tommy Gannon will be up on Electric. Frank Campbell holds the $100 for the winner.

—The case of Eugene Barnard, charged with attempting to commit suicide, occupied the attention of the police magistrate all afternoon. Evidence is being introduced to show that the prisoner played cards and lost on the night that he tried to end his life.

—The crew of the Ariel spent last night in the straits. William Croft, Harry Jones, Jack Savannah and E. W. Spencer were in the boat and if their yachting enthusiasm is not dampened they are all right. Late last evening when off Trial Island the foremast carried away and the boat became unmanageable. The wind blew very hard at times, a heavy sea was on and the yacht was several times in great danger of being swamped. There was nothing to do but to bail the water out as it washed in. The incoming tide carried them across the straits nearly to Dungeness and then back again to Oak Bay. It was a long dreary night with them and all were glad when they got ashore at Oak Bay this morning. They all aver that the prayers of one of the party delivered them.

WHISKEY SMUGGLING

Between Fort Simpson and Alaska—Mr. Schumacher's Story.

San Francisco, June 18.—S. B. Robins and E. F. Schumacher, who for seven or eight years have been mining near Juneau, Alaska, discovered and have just sold the Black Eagle mine. New arrivals from Alaska say there is an immense amount of whiskey smuggling in towns along the coast, and that both Indians and white men can get all the whiskey they like despite the laws. "The whiskey is brought up from Fort Simpson, B. C., in boats," said Schumacher, "and a lot of men have got rich at it. From Juneau to Fort Simpson is a little over 300 miles, but a couple of smugglers in a Columbia river fishing boat or sealing boat can make the round trip in six weeks. It pays too, for they bring a good load and make a big profit. Down at Fort Simpson the whiskey costs $1.50 to $1.75 a gallon, and at Juneau it sells for $4.50 a gallon, a boat carrying four to six hundred gallons, or say from two to two and a half tons. That means $1250 or $1650 profit, so that it is no wonder that a good many people are engaged in the traffic and getting rich. Of course some show is made of capturing the smugglers, and doubtless some effort is made in earnest, but it is easy to evade them. Smugglers usually arrive in the night a little below the town, wait until the tide goes down, and then bury the casks or barrels in the sand, leaving a mark near at hand. The next tide that comes up effaces all indications. It is a long beach to watch. After it is once there everybody drinks it, judges and all. There is not an office holder that does not drink. Bars are wide open and whiskey is sold publicly."

Empress of India.

Yokohama, June 18.—The C. P. R. steamer Empress of India arrived from Vancouver at 7 a.m., Monday, June 18.

Dynamiters at Washington.

Washington, D. C., June 18.—A morning paper here published the plot of anarchists to blow up the National Capitol, the White House, national treasury, and other public buildings. The leader in the plot is said to be Honore Jackson, who narrowly escaped hanging with two anarchists in Chicago, and who was an active spirit in Louis Riel's rebellion in British America. The plot is said to be an outgrowth of the Coxey movement.

AT NANAIMO.

Pythian Decoration Day—A Fire in Northfield.

Nanaimo, June 18.—The Knights of Pythias arrived from Victoria yesterday in large numbers to attend the decoration of departed brethren. The procession was the most imposing ever witnessed in this city. The artillery band headed the procession and was followed by the Victoria, Wellington and Nanaimo lodges. The silver cornet band also accompanied the procession. Rev. R. B. Maitland preached the memorial sermon to the Knights there were about 2,000 persons present.

A fire occurred at Northfield on Saturday night and two small buildings were totally destroyed. The engine from this city was sent to the scene, but on the way the grate fell out and of course they had to return. Fortunately the efforts of the inhabitants succeeded in confining the fire to the two buildings.

WHALER WRECKED.

Loss of Several Lives and Valuable Cargo—Man Missing.

Nanaimo, June 16.—The steamer Willamette brings a meagre report of the loss of the American whaling bark James Allen, which was wrecked off Alka Island, 200 miles west of Ounalaska on the 11th of May. The Alaska Commercial Co.'s steamer Dora picked up 20 of the crew on Boneen Island on June 7. The men were in a starving condition, dependent on seal meat. These men reported that the bark Allen ran on a rock off Alka Island and sank almost immediately. The captain and first mate were lost. The rest of the crew, who left in one of the ship's boats, headed for Ounalaska, are still missing. The U. S. patrol steamer Petrel is out searching for them. The men saved are now on their way down to San Francisco on the bark Worcester, specially chartered by the Alaska Co. for the trip. The lost vessel belongs to San Francisco. The captain's name is not known. He was drowned with the first mate in his cabin. The second mate is among the missing men. The Allen had on board at the time of the wreck a $45,000 cargo for whalers up north.

Ladies Costumes

Ladies have a great deal of trouble in selecting dress goods. The variety is great. The quality is various and the merit claimed is sometimes more than the possession. When ladies are desirous of obtaining the finest grade of Black Dress Goods, they should ask to see Priestley's dress fabrics. These, as is well known, are the ne plus ultra of durability, beauty and delicacy of texture. They have long been the favorite dress goods of well dressed Englishwomen. The Americans prefer them to French goods. Canadian ladies can obtain them from reliable dealers. Ladies should always ask for Priestley's Dress Goods.
